LADIES VISITING THE GUARDS' CAMP.

Captain Milledge's Eyes Improving—Scenes and Incidents of the Day Briefly Noted, Etc.

CAMP GRADY, Salt Springs, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—It is a stirring scene when at 5 a.m. the bugler sends his shrill blast through the woods, to see the men rush out from their tents. It is so cool and invigorating at that hour that the contrast with the heat of the coming day is notable. One of the first men on the ground is the gallant captain, who is as spry as when he answered the morning call on the fields of Virginia. Lieutenant Miller leaves his tent as though he would like to linger there a little longer. When he arose this morning he found standing at his tent door a dog, which seemed to be lost in wonderment at the scenes before him. Miller gazed at the animal for full five minutes, and then drawing his sabre, made a cut, which the dog ended by a long leap run through the camp and over the adjoining fence.

"LOST IN WONDERMENT."

The young soldiers are already known for their peculiarities. Frank Stewart is the dupe of the company, and frequently makes a dash while consulting his little pocket mirror. John Beatie spends his spare time in riding around seeking the belles of the neighborhood, who look upon him with admiration. Ed McBurney watches THE CONSTITUTION eagerly for the deaths. As he is the secretary of a cemetery company, this anxiety is explained on the score of business and not sympathy.

There have been quite a number of lady visitors. Among them were Mrs. John M. Miller, Mrs. John T. Stocks, Mrs. John M. Hill, the Misses Tidwell, Miss Irene Lovejoy, Mrs. Robert Dohm, Miss Virginia Hardin, Mrs. John J. Woodside, Mrs. G. W. Hope, Mrs. W. C. Dodson, Miss O'Keefe and Miss Maud O'Keefe.

Quartermaster Atkins and Commissary Hope remain here in charge.

They will be quartered in one of the president's rooms. New buildings will be constructed for the various county exhibits.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF CARROLL.

A Two Days' Session of Sixty Sunday Schools.

VILLA RICA, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The twenty-six annual convention of the Carroll County Sunday school association will convene here on the 27th and 28th inst. on Wednesday and Thursday. This association is composed of about sixty Sunday schools, and will be means of bringing together about one hundred delegates, besides a great many local school workers from different parts of the state, and will be one of the most interesting meetings the association has ever witnessed. Heretofore it has only occupied one day, but it has been decided by the executive committee to hold two days in future.

THE AUGUSTA DISTRICT.

Bishop Key Present and Will Preside Over Its Deliberations.

SPARTA, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The Augusta district conference is in session here. It was opened on Monday last by Rev. Dr. Lewis of Thomson. The last session was opened at 9 o'clock by Rev. W. P. Lovejoy, P. E., when the hours for meeting and adjournment were fixed for morning and evening sessions, and committees appointed "On Missions," "On Temperance," "On Schools," "Missions of the district," and finance. Bishop Key is present and will preside over the deliberations of the body during its continuance. Rev. W. A. Candler, Dr. C. W. Smith, General C. A. Evans are among the distinguished persons present.

THE NEW RIVER STEAMER.

Found Unconscious—A Big Barbecue in Talbotton.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The Constitution's correspondent at this place, Mr. DeLeon B. McClain, has been dangerously sick with typhus fever for the last twenty-four days, and his friends fear for his safety.

Little Charlie, the son of Captain F. A. Hervey, sent his father a basket of grapes from Griffin.

Mrs. A. Noone, who keeps a boarding-house on Fourth street, is very ill and will hardly survive the night.

The I. O. G. T. had an elegant and enjoyable entertainment at Masonic hall last night.

THE SOLDIERS GO HOME.

Walton County Entertains Greene County's Men.

MONROE, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The Greene Rifles, whose visit to Monroe was noted in our issue of yesterday, are for the moment on this morning's train. The visitors seemed as much in love with Monroe as our citizens were with them. The target practice resulted in a victory for the home company. Sergeant John R. Sheats making the best score received the shield and sword.

The concert last night and the closing hop were greatly enjoyed. Too much cannot be said in praise of the proprietor of the Walton hotel and the Carter house for the elegant manner in which they entertained the visitors. The target practice in Walton has been greatly increased, and new applications to join the company are coming in rapidly. The boys will get new guns in a few weeks and by the time they come they hope to have handsome uniforms. Captain George N. Napier, of the Guards, aided by his men, have given the town and county a treat for which they will long be remembered.

THEY CHEERED THE RIDERS.

One of the chief causes of congratulation here to-day is the marked improvement in Captain Milledge's eyes. He feels the improvements so sensibly that he cannot refrain from talking about it.

Dealey's.

WANTED—AGENTS.

BOSTON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The first sixteen of the 100 men were brought out to the office of City Treasurer Hardee's office. On Saturday the last day of grace expired for securing the ten per cent discount allowed, and the way the property holders rushed in their case was a caution. Only $11,000 was received that day, and in the first sixteen days of the month $87,000 was received. This made an immense amount of work for the office, as the amounts varied from $2 up to $250, and a deal of clerical work was required to keep it all in the accurate manner that characterizes this office. Of the water tax over five-sixths of the entire amount has been collected.

Big Hall Stones.

BOSTON, Ga., July 22.—In the recent hall stones here hall stones were found. The next day they were gone. They meted considerable during the night. When they fell, they were fully as large as a man's head. A few melons that were left in the patches contain holes as large as a man's arm, which the hail had made. Several houses had all the panes of glass broken.

Frank White's Accident.

VILLA RICA, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—Mr. Frank White, in descending a well here this morning, for the purpose of clearing it out, came to the bottom of his life. He had a single and mischievous companion who has long since grown careless, and this morning as he started down the rope broke before he had fully past out of sight, and he fell to the bottom, bringing himself considerably, besides dislocating his left hip.

Adjusted a Lameate.

BOSWELL JUNCTION, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—Chasman Garrett, a citizen of this country's district, lately held in Morgan county, all creditors of said insurance company, who have not received payment, shall receive payment of the same, with interest, on the date of payment, or thereafter, with the dealer who tries to persuade you to take something else when you call for Hood's Saraphin, is evidently working for his interest, and not yours. Be sure and get Hood's, and nothing else.

The Poor Little Sufferer Will Be Immediately relieved by using MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething.

Twenty-five cents a bottle.

FINGERS AND TOES

Which Crowd Each Other Out of the Way.

LEXINGTON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—One of the most remarkable features in human nature, is observed in the Young family, of the Salem neighborhood, this county. Mr. Wm. Young, who lives near Salem, a carpenter by trade, was born with the middle and ring finger of his right hand together, and jointed from the other hand. The remarkable part is that his little baby was born with the same two fingers grown together. Mr. Young has nine brothers, who have natural fingers. His father is a man of small size, and has a weak frame, yet his only sister has six fingers on the same hand grown together. His grandfather had three fingers on each hand, and three toes of each foot grown together, and as far back as he can trace the same fact is apparent, but never to happen on but one in each family.

CROPS AROUND ARLINGTON.

Evidences of the Great Yield in Store for the People.

ARLINGTON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—Cotton showers have fallen here and in all directions during the week, and the farmers are happy over the prospect of the most abundant crops that have blessed this portion of the state in years. It is confidently predicted that cotton will sell here next fall and winter at 25 cents a pound. Mr. W. C. Rivers, an old and reliable farmer, living four miles east of Arlington, has ninety-five acres of common pine land in corn, from which he expects to gather thirty bushels to the acre. It is planted in rows five feet wide and three feet in the drill, and nearly every stalk has a large ear of corn.

Mr. Thompson, the Smithville fruit and nurseryman, will make a grand exhibit, and his wife will make a handsome display of canned goods.

AGAINST THE RAILROAD.

The Barnesville Fire Cases in Pike Superior Court.

ZEBULON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—The big trial of the railroad case has ended. The whole week has been consumed in the trial. This is a special adjourned term to try this case. There are over twenty cases, and the trial against the Central Railroad and Banking Company of Georgia, which grew out of the fire that consumed a large portion of the town of Barnesville, on October 17, 1884. The present case is that of J. F. Taylor vs. the Central Railroad and Banking Company of Georgia, and is to be made a test case. The suit sued for is $3,500. The defendants are represented by able attorneys, among whom are Judge John I. Hall, of Griffin, and Judge Lyons of Macon, and Mr. Lawton, Jr. The plaintiff's representative is the bar of Barnesville and John A. M. Speer. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff.

Mr. J. B. Williamson and George T. Banks, the former of Macon and the letter of F. Banks, of Atlanta, were admitted to the bar. Mr. D. L. Parmer, of Thomaston, was also admitted by the court to practice at the bar.

THE STATE FAIR.

Secretary Grier Reports a Promising Cattle Show.

MACON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—Your correspondent interviewed Secretary Grier, of the State fair association, today, and learned that eight hundred Jersey cattle are to be exhibited. The Jersey cattle will yield over 1,000 pounds of milk per year, and are the best of old, thin cattle.

Mr. Thompson, the Smithville fruit and nurseryman, will make a grand exhibit, and his wife will make a handsome display of canned goods.

THE STATE FAIR.

Returning From the Celebration the Boys Fall Out.

Major Wilkins, of Burke county, on last Monday sent three of his blooded horses to Lexington, Ky., to compete in the Piedmont exposition and the state fair. He has just succeeded in establishing another factor in Chattanooga for the sale of his horses.

The city authorities are repairing the buildings, and the county will erect some new ones. Editors' home will be turned into an exhibition hall, thus giving three more rooms to the use of the fair.

The horses will be quartered in one of the president's rooms. New buildings will be constructed for the various county exhibits.

FIGHTING ON THE TRAIN.

MACON, Ga., July 22.—[Special.]—While the Thirtieth Georgia regiment will hold its annual reunion for the year 1888, at Fairburn, on July 13th.

The merchants of Hawkinsville have agreed to close their stores at six o'clock p.m. until the 13th of August.

The reunion of the Forty-third Georgia regiment will occur at Allatoona on the 30th of August.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 23, 1887.

The National Veterans.

It is now certain that a new organization is to be formed by veterans of the late war who fought on the side of the union.

For several years there has been a growing discontent in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic. In many instances it has been used as a political machine to promote the ambition of certain post-bellum warriors. This dissatisfaction was increased when an attempt was made to use the influence of the entire G. A. R. organization in support of the dependent pension bill. The bill was opposed by many brave men who had fought for the union, and who believed that it was an unjustifiable raid on the public treasury. These men openly indorsed the action of President Cleveland in vetoing the bill.

The St. Louis episode widened still further the breach in the Grand Army, and is the occasion of the rise of the new organization. It is to have its birth in the state of Iowa, the home of Tuttle and the Clarksons, who did the most blatant howling at the president when he consented to go to St. Louis during the Grand Army encampment.

A meeting of union veterans was held the other day at Des Moines, and Tuttle was formally denounced for insulting the chief magistrate of the United States. Another resolution declared that the dependent pension bill was "a scheme of republican politicians acting under the cloak of the G. A. R."

The new organization, which is called "The Association of National Veterans," is spreading rapidly in Iowa. It is predicted by the Des Moines Leader that in two weeks it will have fifty lodges and ten thousand members in that state alone.

It will undoubtedly spread to other states and become a national institution. It is to be hoped that the new organization will profit by the mistakes of the Grand Army of the Republic and not fall into the control of demagogues or those who desire to fan the flames of sectional hate.

There is division among the negroes as regards mixed schools. The most sensible see that such a system would work great harm, while the unreflecting think it would be a big thing. We will have no mixed schools in Georgia.

The Health of Memphis.

Memphis claims that she is one of the healthiest cities in the United States. Unfortunately, however, she cannot get the outside world to believe it.

The other day some fellow started a report that yellow fever was prevailing in Memphis. The rumor traveled like wildfire. It was believed in New York, and the entire southwest was in a flurry. Of course the report was promptly contradicted by the doctors and the authorities, but it is difficult to counteract such falsehoods. They scare people, and injure business.

A certain degree of indignation on the part of the Memphians is perfectly justifiable under the circumstances, and the inventor of the yellow fever yarn undoubtedly deserves some kind of punishment. But the Memphis Avalanche goes to extremes.

It states that it does not believe in mob law, but in this particular case it suggests that a rope and a lamp post might be utilized without serious damage to the public morals. This is going too far. It will not do for the press to encourage lynch law. The country has altogether too much of it at all times.

GOVERNOR BULLOCK says that the "republicans of the south are tired of Sherman's bloody-shirt speeches." This is probably true, but Sherman's remarks were addressed to northern republicans.

About Summer Resorts.

There is nothing more truly beautiful than a summer resort—if we are to believe the several and various correspondents who wield their magic pens in the newspapers—and nothing more attractive. But the more beautiful and attractive they are the larger and more promiscuous the crowds that flock to them.

Our experience is that people do not go to the summer resorts to behold the beautiful, but merely to enjoy a change of scene. They deliberately forsake the comforts of home in order that they may see new faces and gaze on new scenes. They go for a change and they get it.

How easy it is to remember the salient (if we may be permitted to tumble into the word into the festive scene)—how easy it is to remember the salient features of the average summer resort! The small room with its bare walls; the blistered bureau leaning in uncertain way against the wall; the slim delf pitcher that dances a jig in the bowl every time a dog barks; the hard mattress, the stuffy pillows and the rickety bedstead; the thin towels and the turpentine soap; the tin pan piano on which the thin young woman plays "Lily Dale," and "Sweet Lula is Gone"; the dear old lady with the ginklet curls who talks from morning till night; the young man who oils his hair; the giggling young woman who dotes on whilst and plays every card wrong.

All this is partially an inside view. The spectacle outside is quite an enchanting one. Decaying watermelon rinds bask in the bright sunshine—an invitation to the frisky pigs to come forward with a fresh contribution of fleas. Another feature of the landscape that cannot be adequately portrayed is an active renewal of an old feud between the house-maid and the cook. Then there are the yells of the children, the squabbles between the turkey gobbler and the game rooster, and the squalls of the pet peacock, with the sun blazing over all.

But it is at night that the claims of your true summer resort begin to glow and glitter. For some inexplicable reason, the sun does not shine at night at a genuine summer resort, and, as a consequence, the charms to which we have alluded stand out like the humps on the back of a dredger. When the tin pan piano ceases to rattle, and the young woman has taken her giggle off to bed, the sound of bells is heard in the land. By means of that mysterious dispensation which seems to single out summer resorts as the victims of its beneficence, every sheep and all the cows within hearing distance are provided with unmelodious, bells and they make it a point, as soon as the jangling piano has cooled off, to meet in convention around the luxurious hotel. They come from all directions, and they take their time about it, so that at 12 o'clock, midnight, the bell-wethers and bell-cows, for miles around, have met in solemn conclave.

When there is a pause in their vociferous deliberations, it is filled by the dismal barking of a dog in the neighborhood; and when there seems to be an opportunity for peace and quiet, a drove of pigs, each armed with seventeen different varieties of squeals.

The work they do is appreciated. It is the work they are not willing to get rid of it so easily and cheaply.

FIFTY-ONE CATS.

The Board of Health Calls Upon Mrs. Mary Hudson.

SHE LIVED IN JANE STREET AND ONE

OF HER NEIGHBORS MADE COMPLAINT—WHEN WORLD REPORTER VISITED HER ALL THE CATS WERE GONE.

From the New York World.

Mrs. Mary Hudson and her aged mother moved into the top flat of No. 47 Jane street a couple of years ago, bringing with them a small colony of cats. The women and the cats lived together in peace and quietude until a few days ago, when woe fell upon them. They have been unhappy and likeable ever since. Yesterday Inspector Cannon, of the board of health, visited the flat to investigate a complaint that had been made about the abundance and odoriferousness of the cats. He reported that he had found no less than fifty-one cats and several dozen varieties of odds, most of which he could not classify in polite or parliamentary language. Mrs. Hudson was notified that she will have to dissipate the nuisance.

A world reporter who knows a thing or two about cats, rang the bell and climbed up to Mrs. Hudson's lofty apartments yesterday afternoon to find out why all the felines were about the poor innocent cats. Mrs. Hudson showed her visitor a chair whose cushions were plentifully sprinkled with prematurely white cat hair. Then she poured forth her tale of woe freely. Mrs. Hudson and her mother moved into the top flat of No. 47 Jane street two years ago. They had five rooms. Also they brought with them five cats, all of which had names. Nobody made any noise about the cats, and they injured no one.

"Our world of the world rejoices," said the flat of the world that rejoices. "Worlds of bright vision and voices, into the world." In respect to the late Senator Smith, the memorial, after giving a short sketch of his early life and education, spoke of his work in the senate. Said he: "He came to the senate as one of its youngest members, but his eloquence, bold and unctuous, soon won him the respect of his colleagues; he began his career a stranger to most of his associates; he ended it bearing the warm attachment of all who admired honesty of purpose and sincere devotion to the obligations of duty. He died in the language and starlight exhibition of God's mysterious way."

The fifth flat was an Adelais Eden from "way back." Mrs. Green, "who runs a laundry from Sixth avenue," so Mrs. Hudson says, had long sought a place where she and her black cat Nigger could board. Mrs. Hudson opened to Mrs. Green and Nigger a haven where they could rest peacefully, with board, for several dollars a week. Nigger fraternized well with Mrs. Hudson's cats, and there was much joy in the house. Sundry neighbors from time to time found their noses assailed by a weird soul-racking bouquet des chats, but held their peace and felt happy for the simple reason that the cats couldn't get down into the yard and howl and spit on the back fence. There is no slave at 47 Jane street.

The Adelais Eden got along swimmingly until the advent of the serpent, brought in by Mrs. Hudson, by Emily Johnson, her own niece. Emily doesn't like cats. Furthermore, after a severe quarrel with Mrs. Hudson a few days ago she walked out of the fifth flat swearing vengeance. This took the shape of a letter to the board of health telling all the cats in the city that they must go away, but left her black pet in Mrs. Hudson's care. To her came wicked Emily Johnson two days ago saying, "If you can anything about your Nigger you'd better move him away." Mrs. Green moved him away with neatness and dispatch.

On the unexpected arrival called yesterday morning he found a great many cats in Mrs. Hudson's rooms. What had become of them when the world man got there was a mystery. Only three were in sight—Cassis & Cassandine, pure white, with a banded collar of gold about her neck. Blue eyes, straight nose, and a coat and a tail all around her, and Bessie, a piebald combination of tortoiseshell and other tints. They all looked plump, but as they frisked about the room they lent it an air suggestive of Roquefort cheese and other weird things that come with it.

"I have no more," said Mrs. Hudson, shaking her short hair impatiently. "All the pets I have are these cats, and that English sprawl I took in front of me. The cats are all right and hurt nobody. They never go down in the yard. But, wait till I see that girl Emily, that's all."

Mrs. Hudson weighs about 145 pounds, and seems to be in good condition. Emily Johnson had better beware of her. In the meantime, the board of health will look to the care and the fumigation of the rooms.

AFFECTED BY THE INTERSTATE BILL

Southern Lumber Shut Out of the Western Markets.

Mr. Harrison of Franklin—Incorporating the town of Carnesville, Ga.—proposed a bill to peddle without license. Also, to repeat the act making the public roads in towns and other counties free from tolls.

Mr. Jackson seconded the resolutions in a short speech, and added consolation and condolence to the families of the deceased, and then adjourned the session, so that there was no time too early to prepare for the unexpected coming of death.

Senator Hawkes made, perhaps, the most appropriate and beautiful address upon the resolutions, and in a speech of singular pathos and beauty mentioned the adoption of the report by a rising state.

Mr. Pringle put the question and the entire senate rose to its feet, testifying its respect to the memory of the dead by the most eloquent means in its power. The resolution was adopted, and at the hour of noon precisely the senate, in a unanimous mark of respect to the memory of the dead, adjourned until 10 o'clock on Monday, July 25th.

NEW RAILROADS PROPOSED.

Mr. Smith of Gwinnett, introduced in the house yesterday a bill to charter the North and South Carolina railroad company from Atlanta through the counties of Baldwin, Bibb, Emanuel, Bullock, Troup, Liberty, Wayne and Camden, via Jesup to the Florida line. The incorporators are C. L. Harrell, W. H. Whaley, D. W. Nicholson and W. F. Crittenden. Capital stock $1,000,000.

Mr. Russell of Polk—Incorporating in the house, proposing a charter for the Ore Belt railroad, running from a point at or near Cedarstown, in Polk county, to a point near Cave Spring, in Floyd county. The capital stock is placed at $50,000.

Mr. Arminoff offered in the house yesterday a bill to charter the Albany, Cuthbert, Birmingham and Western railroad company, including a fatal effect upon this Georgia, industry a fatal effect upon this Georgia, industry by the operation of the long and narrow gauge railroads.

It has time and again urged that the interstate commerce be threatened by the construction of a number of small enterprises.

Mr. Powell closed the address upon the resolutions, and in a speech of singular pathos and beauty mentioned the adoption of the report by a rising state.

Mr. Fagan—Amending the act creating a board of commissioners in Houston county.

Mr. Johnson of Monroe—Declaring it a misdemeanor to peddle goods on the lands of another without consent.

Mr. Buchan—Authorizing David Lovett, of Dodge county, to peddle without license.

Mr. McRae—Amending the act establishing the North and South Shore line railroad.

Mr. Hendren—Authorizing the registration of various lands in county, prohibiting hunting and fishing on the lands of another in Irwin county, without consent.

Mr. McRae—Requiring justices of the peace and notaries public, ex-officio justices of the peace, to send transcript of fia issued by them to the clerk of the superior court.

Mr. Smith of Gwinnett—For the relief of Dinkin Brown, and to authorize him to peddle without license.

Mr. Humphries of Clinch—Appropriating $75 to the widow of Madison M. Carlton for a charitable act.

Mr. Russell of Chatman—Ceding exclusive jurisdiction over certain property in Savannah to the United States.

Mr. Evans—Incorporating the bank of Sandersville.

Mr. Fagan—Amending the act creating a board of commissioners in Houston county.

Mr. Fagan introduced a bill in the house yesterday inserting the name of Gwinnett and Sanderson's railroad. It is allowed to extend its line to Hawkinsville and Albany, and another incorporating the Augusta, Thomasville and Gulf railroad. It starts at some point on the Augusta, Gilmer and Sanderson line, and runs to Thomasville in the Florida.

The capital stock is $300,000. The incorporators are H. M. Mjtchell, W. T. Gary, Thomas Warthen, of Georgia, and George W. Setson, of New York.

A GRAND REUNION.

The Forty-Second Georgia Regiment's Celebration Yesterday.

GRANT PARK THE PLACE OF MEETING.

The War Tattered Banner Waves With the Stars and Stripes—Patriotic Speeches of Gordon, Calhoun and Others.

The reunion of the Forty-second Georgia regiment yesterday was successful. Every thing went well that could be expected, a brisk breeze rendering the atmosphere pleasantly cool all day long. The attendance of veterans was fully as large as was ever.

At 12 o'clock a salute was fired by a detachment of the band at Atlanta.

The dinner was announced, and an excellent spread was laid near the Constitution spring. The ladies had brought baskets full of choice eatables, and there was plenty for everybody.

After dinner the soldiers spent several hours in a variety of ways. Toward 6 o'clock they boarded the cars and returned to the city.

They passed a unanimous vote declaring that the reunion of 1887 was in every respect a complete success.

Something About the 42nd.

The ten companies of the regiment formed on Peachtree street immediately before the county courthouse. The march was then taken up Hunter street to Whitehall, thence to Alabama and down to Peachtree; where ranks were broken and cars for Grant park were boarded. Five elegant cars of the Metropolitan line were comfortably filled. The journey to the park was made rapidly, and by 10 o'clock the soldiers were disembarking. The local committee had made the best possible arrangements for the occasion. The pavilion was tastefully furnished with colors, the flag of the United States being conspicuously displayed. A large number of ladies were awaiting the arrival of the regiment. The soldiers then filled the space near the pavilion, disposing themselves in happy groups. The order of exercises published in yesterday's CONSTITUTION was observed. All the present officers of the organization were re-elected. The six pictures given the regiment by the Rev. Sam Small were formally presented, and a vote of thanks was passed to the giver. About the time the business was finished, Judge Calhoun came on his report as historian, and he spoke as follows:

THE HISTORIAN'S ADDRESS.
Judge W. L. Calhoun, historian, spoke as follows:

"I am sorry that I cannot, at this time, present you with a history of the regiment. It is, however, my fault. When, at our last meeting, I was elected historian, it was understood that each captain should give a short history of his unit.
I have done my best to make up for this omission.

"The battle of Peachtree street was the hardest of the several bloody fights about Atlanta, and perhaps the severest engagement in the campaign between the 20th and the 25th of July, but neither was so bloody as the battle of the 2nd, which was fought beyond Kennesaw Mountain.

"The 2nd was a glorious day, and the battle of Peachtree street gives a full and splendid account of the valor and gallantry of the confederate troops.

"The following commissions were issued yesterday by the governor: W. H. Clark as justice of the peace for the 88th district; Henry County; B. T. Rawlins as tax collector of Wilkinson county in place of Ross Robson, who has been promoted to the adjutant-general and colonel of the 42nd Georgia.

"Colonel L. P. Thomas, the former chief of the regiment, became a major-commander of the 42nd. Major W. H. Hulsey was promoted to the command of a brigade for gallantry on the field. Colonel F. Maddox, the first lieutenant colonel of the regiment, was soon promoted to the rank of colonel and another promotion, and Major L. P. Thomas, who was promoted to the command of the 42nd, was given the rank of colonel.

"Colonel L. P. Thomas, who was promoted to the command of the 42nd, was given the rank of colonel.
